was to be some real base ball, from the strength of the two teams. Gaylord, strengthened by some of the best ball players in northern Michigan, has one of the city, and one which will do justice in representing that city for the summer. A regular meeting of the Village Council of the Village of Grayling convened at the town hall Monday evening, July 6, 1914.

Meeting cailed to order by T. W. Hanson, President.

Trustees present: Petersen, Can-field. Taylor and Cook. Trustees absent: Herrick and Jor-the summer.

Because of the rivalry between the two teams, each was anxious to get the start upon the other, especially in the morning game. Gaylord put 'smoky' Joe Hale, a former Grayling player, upon the firing line to hand the sphere up to his former team mates, while Grayling called upon Goode to do the hurling for them. From the time the umpire said 'batter up' until the final man was out, it was a pitchers' duel with Goode rounding out with the big end. Smoky Joe was in good form, especially with genson.

Minutes of last regular meeting and special meeting read and approved.

Report of committee on finance, claims and accounts read, to wit: To the president and members of the Common Council of the Village of Grayling. Your committee on linance, claims and accounts respectfully rec-ommend that the following accounts be allowed as charged. Grayling Mach. Repair Co.,

rounding out with the big end. Smoky Joe was in good form, especially with men on the sacks when he would strengthen and cause the Grayling batsmen to retire by the strikeout method. Features of the game were the fact that Grayling played error-less ball, the hitting of especies, a three base hit by Beals and the fielding of Williams.

1st inning: Grayling, Funk was hit by a pitched ball, Torongeau hit into a double play, Johnson flied out. No hits no runs. Gaylord, Hutchins and Peterson both grounded out, Longdo walked, Beals flied out. No hits no runs. hits no runs.

during the contest, however Gaylord used their hits when hits meant runs, while the larger number of Grayling's were wasted with no men on bases. Bramer took the firing line for Gaylord and although hit to all corners of the diamond, managed to last the entire game. Goods, who had pitched the game in the morning, started to hold up Grayling's end of the pitching but had to give way to Haire in the third when the Gaylord boys began to make hay and crossed the plate for a total of 11 runs.

Grayling was the first to score and began in the first inning, getting one run. In the second they gathered in another and again in the third they registered three more. They could score no more until the sixth, when they managed to annew another, although they had men on bases every inning. In the eighth and ninth they scored again, giving a total of nine runs.

Anamal School Meeting. JOEL MOSSBERG IS GIFTED AND FAMOUS

GRAM IN THIS CITY.

Member of National Grand Opera Company.

Worcester (Mass.) Sven. March.— The next number on the program belonged to the prominent baritone, Joe Mossberg of Chiengo, He made his Worcester debut with the prologue from Pagliacet. Greeted by storming appliance upon his entrance on the stage, the appliance after the song became an evution. Of a singer with so stately an appearance one expects stately things, and the audience was not deceived. The way Mr. Mossberg rendered the prologue has never before been heard in Worcester. The delivery of this difficult aris was matic, effervescent with life and color and Mr. Mossberg's voice was reso nant in all its registers, his brilliant high tones ringing and bell-like in a way one seldom finds in the most gifted buritones of international fame. In ne word, the prologue was sung Fri be done by a great singer and an artist, who has the advantage of voice resources extraordinary, and the public rewarded him with tremendor plause, to which he responded with the "Toreador" from 'Carmen,' To sing so taxing an encore after such a hig num ber as the prologue was almost too much to expect, but we by this time expect almost anything of Mr. Moss-berg, and the 'Torendor' was greeted with storm of applause well de-served."

Mr. Mossberg will appear in this city with on the Lincoln Chautauqua program on the sixth day. He is a member of the National Grand Opera Company, which will sing the preludes to Con-gressman Fred S. Jackson's addresses.

Gaylord boys were not satisfied and only after they had caused the scorer to use the crayon 19 times were they content to remain quiet long enough for Grayling to retire three of their men. The Grayling team, backed by as loyal rooters as ever gazed across a ball field, would not feel defeat and fought every round determined to win. In the latter part of the game when Grayling could not score runs fast enough by making singles they began to use a new form of attack, that of making home runs, Johnson and Creech being the chief offenders. Soon Gaylord caught up the new strain and the game developed into a batfest. Each team getting 16 hits during the contest, however Gaylord used their hits when hits meant runs, while the larger number of Grayling's were wasted with no men on bases.

Bramer took the firing line for Gaylord and although hit to all corners of the diamond, managed to last the entire game. FEATURES OF INTEREST AND VALUE TO THE WOMEN IN THE HOMES OF GRAYLING AND CRAWFORD COUNTY.

The truth is that in human service there is no low or high degree; the woman who scrubs is as worthy of re-spect as the man who preaches.

The pathway to success is in serving humanity. By no other means is it possible, and this truth is so plain and patent that even very simple folk recognise it.

Fill sterilized bottles to within two inches from the top. cork, tie down the corks and invert the bottles. Keep at seventy degrees Fah, for twelve hours. Then place on ice and it will be ready to serve in two days. Shake occasionally to keep the cream from clogging the necks of the bottles.

Lemon Egg Nogg — Separate the yolk and white of one egg, beat until light and thick, add to a glass of lem-onade using the white on top, stirring it in lightly. This is not only nour ishing, but refreshing on a hot day.

Mint Fizzle-Cut the rind of a lemor very thin, then in small strips. Squeeze the juice of a half a lemon in each glass, add a teaspoon of sugar then fill with shaved ice. Pour in equal parts of ginger pop and grape juice: place three sprigs of mint in each glass and a sprinkling of lemon Serve with straws.

Syracuse Lemonade-Best the volks of four eggs until thick, pour over two quarts of strong lemonade to which is added the grated rind of one lemon Pour into a crystal pitcher, heap of the whites of the eggs well beaten, dust with nutmeg and serve with shaved ice in each glass.

Walking With

God

By REV. L. W. GOSNELL had to the Door

TEXT-"And Enoch walked with God, and he was not; for God took him." Genesis 5:24.

ter of Genesis con-tains a list of men reached re markable ages: yet, with one exception, it is written of each of them, "and he died." This man. who walked with God, and did not die, is one of the most attractive figures in Scripture.

The fifth chap

He lived amid wicked people Enoch's generation was ripening for the flood, and every imagination of man's heart was only evil continually; "walked with God." He encour ages us to walk thus even under difficult circumstances. Christ said to the church at Pergamos: "I know where thou dwellest, even where Satan's seat is: and thou holdest fast my name and hast not denied my faith." How cheering to hear of "saints in Caesar's household." and to know that Christ so lived at wicked Nazareth that the Father could say, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

He lived in the twilight of revela tion. There was as yet no Bible, yet he "walked with God." How shall he rise up to condemn us!

He was married. Some have thought cellbacy necessary to the highest holiess, but Enoch refutes the idea. We actually knew a mother who declared he could not be a Christian until her children were larger and less exasper ating! But we are told "Enoch walked with God after he begat Me ating! thuselah," and it is suggested that the coming of this little life into his was the beginning of his heavenly conver-

His Walk.

He walked by faith (Hebrews 11:5). There is no record of him having revelations more than we have who also "walk by faith." "Faith cometh by hearing and hearing by the word of God," and such a faith is basis enough for walking with God.

He pleased God (Hebrews 11:5) How indifferent this makes us to men's opinions! "It is a small thing with me that I am judged of men's judgment." How blessed to know can bring for to the heart of God and that we may "walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing" (Col. 1:10).

He warned the wicked. Jude tells us that Enoch prophested, saying, Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judg ment upon all. Those who walk with God long to bring to him "them that are without." Good men may, like Samuel Rutherford, lack the evangelistic gift, but they will have the evanrelistic heart which made Rutherford sing:

If but one soul from Anworth eet me at God's right hand My heaven will be two heavens, in Immanuel's land.

He was progressive in holiness. He walked with God, and pressed toward the mark for the prize. The perfection of Christians on earth is very imperfect, and even in heaven shall still be walking in white. His Exit.

His strange departure proved immortality to be a fact, just as Elijah's translation later assured Israel and as we are assured by Christ's resurrec

His departure was felt. Hebrews says that Enoch "was not found," as if they had sought him. He was missed It is still so when a saint passes. Witness the multitudes that gathered at the funerals of John Wesley and Catherine Booth and Jerry McAuley.

He went out in the prime of life. He was taken when 365 years of age, and as compared with others of that day, this was just the morning of life, corresponding to the age of thirty-three now. We wonder when men are caught away just as their usefulness begins. But surely God does not deal unkindly with his friends. "To depart is to be with Christ, which is far bet-ter." "Taken away from the evil to come"—this might be written of Enoch and of many another saint. His departure was easy. "He was not; for God took him," reads, "God had translated him." The results, coor had classified fifth. Into pealmist seems to apply the language of the text to death. Pasim 49:15 tells us, "He will deliver my soul from the power of the grave for he will take me;" and Psalm 73:24 reads, "Thou wilt guide me by thy counsel and afterward take me to glory." As with the translated saint, so with the dying, the Father will stoop down to the child who has been walking with him saints, that he had not found one to whom dying grace was not given.

Moreover, should we be alive at the Lord's coming, we shall be translated as literally as Enoch. (1 Thess. 4:18.

GOOD OPPORTUNITY TO CLEAN UP YARDS

There is Nothing More Sanitary Than a Clean, Well-Kept Barnyard.

(By ELMER HENDERSON.)
Just between corn planting and corn plowing there is a little time when the work in the fields is not so crowding.

This affords a good opportunity t clean the manure from the yards and land it out into the fields. At this time of the year most probably the only place to land it is the hay ground.

This is a good place for it. as the rowing meadow will take up all the nitrates as fast as they are release from the decaying manure and apply it to their own use.

It has been proved time and again by actual tests reported by our experiment stations that the manure that is allowed to lie around and rot loses three-fourths of its value.

This is due to decomposition of the material, nitrification and the escape of ammonia and to leaching or wash ing by rains.

When manure decays there is liberated by this process, nitrogen, which is one of the most valuable factors on the American farm today.

If this nitrogen is allowed to escape, its value is lost to the crop, which probably needs it very much.

As much as three-fourths of the available nitrogen in a soil may escape during the summer. When it is considared that this is one of the most valextent of the loss is at once apparent

As to the loss by leaching or wash ing. I need only remind you of the stream of muddy water that issues hay hext summer from a manure pile during and after every heavy rain.

Every drop of water is rich in this valuable nitrogen, not to mention the other elements that are of so much value to the growing crops.

The average manure in the spring, before leaching or decomposition has begun, is worth anywhere from $2.50 to $3 per ton; allowed to remain in the yard until fall, it is worth barely a third of that price.

In our calculations we have left the sanitary aspect out of consideration. There should be nothing more sanitary than a clean, well-kept barnyard. On the other hand, there is not a better place for the germs of disease than in the foul, filthy yards that are so com-mon on many homesteads. Many a fine horse has been ruined by being compelled to tramp to and from the water trough through one of these disgraceful barn lots. Grease. rot and all its kindred allments are only too common to animals allowed to remain in these places. Then, brother farmers, clean up. If not for your stock's sake, then for your pocketbook's sake. But it is dollars to doughnuts that the man who allows his manure to lie around all summer, also lets his other work lag. Clean up! It is more sanitary; things look better-baye a cleaner.

The elements that insult your nostrils, in a dirty barnyard, are the same that make the big crop of fragrant

VALUE OF ALFALFA AND ACRE OF CORN

Placing Valuation of Two and Chemicals Are Perfectly Safe for One-Half Times on Former Seems to Be About Right.

A comparison of the value of the average acre of alfalfa with the average acre of corn brings some interesting figures to light. An enthusiastic alfalfa raiser claims that one acre of alfalfa is worth two and a half acres of corn. This looks like a rather large estimate but a little work with a pad and pencil shows that the enthusiast has not overdrawn the comparison to

What is expected to prove a more positive test for soil acidity than the common litmus paper test, and one which because of the cheap and harmless chemicals used in its operation, will be within the reach of the ordinary farmer, has been devised by E. I never ordered; I never commanded: I always asked requested; and always got the same result, of course. The first notable result was that, as little as he was my child always looked at me when I spoke. That may seem like a small matter, but it is not. It is the beginning of a respect for Mother that is so desirable and so very rare today. It is also the greatest aid in securing obedience. To address one's instruction to the back of a child's head is an injustice to the child. One cannot be sure whether he understands or not. If he does not, to punish is unjust. One would never think of doubting the lonesty of a man who assumes the position as never think of doubting the honesty of a man who assumes the position as umpire, but when repeated decisions are made, especially against the visiting team, and decisions which the home team have to admit are wrong, we hesitate about a man's judgment. This is what the Grayling team had to go up against Sunday at Cheboyram.

posing team down to four hits aild two of them were of the lucky lend. Laurant, a foramer Grayling player, hurled for the leather makers and pitched a good brand of ball, having the Grayling players hitting easy grounders into the infield.

Cheboygan was the first to score, they scoring one in the second on an error, a base on balls and a single. In the third Grayling came, back and crossed the plate twice on an error and two doubles by Goodrow and Creech. In the sixth Cheboygan again took the lend as in this frame they scored two runs on three singles and a base on balls. Again in the seventh Grayling scored two more on three hits by Goodrow, Funk and Torongeau. In the eighth Cheboygan registered another and the score was a tie and remained this way until the tenth when. Cheboygan scored the winning run on a two base hit and a fluke single.

Except for the protests of the Grayling players against the umpire decisions it was a fast and snappy game of base ball. There were no features of the game.

The weeks slipped by. He was with her almost daily. Other people came to her house, some for rather protract-ed visits, others in quest of pillage at the nightly bridge table, but he was seldom missing. There were times when he thought he detected a tendency to waver, but each cunning attempt on his part to encourage the impulse invariably brought a certain mocking light into her eyes and he veered off in defeat. Something kept telling him, however, that the hour was bound to come when she would falter in her resolution; when frankness would meet frankness, and the the veil be lifted.

There were no letters from Hetty, no word of any description. If Sara knew anything of the girl's movements she did not take Booth into her confi-ing, "you very foolishly fell in love with some one else, and it wasn't necessary for me to pretend that I was in love with you—which I should have done, believe me, if you had given me the chance. You fell in love first with Hetty Castleton.

"First?" he cried, frowning, "And now you are heels over head in love with my beautiful sister-in-law. Which all goes to prove that I would have made just the kind of wife you need, considering your tendency to fluctuate. But how dreadful it would have been for a sentimental, loving girl like Hetty!" He sat bolt upright and stared hard at her. "See here, Viv, what the dickens are you driving at? I'm not in love with Sara—not in the least—and—" He checked himself sharnly. "What an ass I am! You're guying me."

"In any event, I am right about Hetty," she said, leaning forward, her manper quite serious. "If it will ease you mind," he said stiffy, "I plead guilty with all my heart."

She favored him with a slight frown of annoyance.

"And you deny the fluctuating charge?"

"Most positively. I can afford to be honest with you, Viv. You are a corker. I love Hetty Castleton with all my soul."

The next day he called her up on the telephone quite early. He knew her habits. She would be abroad in her gardens by eight o'clock. He re-

She leaned back in her chair. "Then why don't you dignify your soul by being honest with her?"
"What do you mean?"

For a half-minute she was silent. "Are you and I of the same stripe, after all? Would you marry Sara without leving her, as I would have done by you? It doesn't seem like you, Brandon."

"Good heaven, I'm not going to marry Sara!" he blurted out. "It's never entered my head." "Perhaps it has entered hers."

"Nonsense! She isn't going to marry anybody. And she knows ho feel toward Hetty. If it came to the point where I decided to marry without love, 'pon my soul, Viv, I believe I'd pick you out as the victim."

"Perhaps not. But I fancy that even you could not escape as St. Anthony did. She is most alluring." 'You don't like her."

"Obviously. And yet I don't dislike her. She has the virtue of consistency, if one may use the expression. She loved my brother. Leslie says she should have bated him. We have tried to like her. I think I have come nearer to it than any of the others, not excepting Leslie, who has always been heart pierced with a red dagger, a champion. and that was the end of it all. She had made the unpleasant discovery that it wasn't going to be in the least like Hetty Castleton's, so why bother about it?

Booth waited until Sara came out to superintend the closing of her house for the winter. He called at South-look on the day of her arrival. He was struck at once by the curious change in her appearance and manner. Once More at Burton's Inn.

Again Sara Wrandall found herself in that never-to-be-forgotten room at Burton's inn. On that grim night in March she had entered without fear or trembling because she knew what was there. Now she quaked with a mighty chill of terror, for she knew not what was there in the gulet, now sequestered room. Burton had told them on their arrival after a long drive across country that patrons of the inn invariably asked which room it was that had been the scene of the tragedy, and, on finding out, re fused point-blank to occupy it. consequence he had been obliged to transform it into a sort of store and baggage room.

Sara stood in the middle of the murky room, for the shutters had long been closed to the light of day, and looked about her in awe at the heterogeneous mass of boxes, trunks, bun dles and rubbish, scattered over the floor without care or system. She had closed the door behind her and was quite alone. Light speaked in through the cracks in the shutters, but so meagerly that it only served to increase the gloom. A dismantled bed-stead slood heaped up in the corner. She did not have to be told what bed it was. The mattress was there too rolled up and tied with a thick garden rope. She knew there were dull, ugly blood stains upon it. Why the thrifty Burton had persovered in keeping this useless article of furniture, she could only surmise. Perhaps it was held as an inducement to the morbidly curious who always seek out the gruesome and gloat even as they shudder

For a long time she stood immov the horrid picture of another day. She tried to imagine the scene that had cen enacted there with gentle, lovable Hetty Glynn and her whilom husband as the principal characters The girl had told the whole story of that ugly night. Sara tried to see it as it actually had transpired. For months this present enterprise had been in her mind: the desire to se the place again, to go there with old hind when ready to emerge in a new frame of mind. It was true that she meant to shake off the shackles of a horrid dream, to purge herself of the last vestige of bitterness, to cleanse her mind of certain thoughts and mem-

Downstairs Booth waited for her He heard the story of the tragedy from the innkeeper, who crossly maintained that his business had been ruined. Booth was vaguely impressed, he knew not why, by Burton's description of the missing woman. "I'd say she was about the size of Mrs. Wrandall herself, and much the same figger," he said, as he had said a thousand times before. "My wife noticed it the min-Sam height and everything."

A bell rang charply and Burton glanced over his shoulder at the indicator on the wall behind the desk. He gave a great start and his jaw sagged. "Great Scott!" he gasped. A curious grayness stole over his face. "It's —it's the bell in that very room. My soul what can-" "Mrs. Wrandall is up there, isn't she?" demanded Booth.

"It ain't rung since the night he nushed the button for- Oh, gee! You're right. She is up there. what a scare it gave me." He wiped his brow. Turning to a boy, he com-manded him to answer the bell. The boy went slowly, and as he went he removed his hands from his pockets. He came back an instant later, more swiftly than he went, with the word that "the lady up there" wanted Mr. Booth to come upstairs.

She was waiting for him in the open doorway. A shaft of bright sunlight from a window at the end of the hall fell upon her. Her face was colorless haggard. He paused for an instant to contrast her as she stood there in the nitiless light with the vivid creature he had put upon canvas so recently. She beckoned to him and turned

He opened his lips to speak, but no words came forth. Paralysis seemed to have gripped not only his throat but his senses. He recled. She grasped his arm in a tense, flerce way. and whispered:

"Be careful! No one must hear what we are saying," She shot a glance down the deserted hall. "No one is near. I made sure of that Don't speak! Think first—think well, Brandon Booth. It is what you have been seeking for months—the truth. You share the secret with us now. Again I sak, is it safe with you?"

"My God!" he muttered again, and passed his hand over his eyes. His brow was wet. He looked at his fingers dumbly as if expecting to find them covered with blood.

"Come." she said at last. "Pull yourself together. We must leave this place. If you are not careful they will suspect something downstairs." looked up with haggard studying her face with curlous intent-

"What manner of woman are you, Sara?" he questioned, slowly, deringly.

"I have just discovered that I am very much like other women, after ali," she said. "For awhile I thought I was different, that I was stronger than my sex. But I am just as weak just as much to be pitied, just as much to be scorned as any one of my sisters. I have spoiled a great act by stooping to do a mean one. God will bear witness that my thoughts were noble at the outset; my beart was soft. But come! There is much more to tell that cannot be told here.

You shall know everything." They went downstairs and out into the crisp autumn air. She gave directions to her chausteur. They were to traverse for some distance the same night a year and a half before. In ourse of time the motor approached well-remembered railway crossing.

"Slow down, Cole," she said. "This is a mean place—a very mean place." Turning to Booth, who had been alt ting grim and silent beside her for miles, she said, lowering her voice: "I remember that crossing yonder. There is a sharn curve heyond. This is the place. Midway between the two crossings, I should say. Please re-member this part of the road, Bran-don, when I come to the telling of that night's ride to town. Try to pic ture this spot-this smooth, straight road as it might be on a dark freezing night in the very thick of a screaming blizzard, with all the world abed save

In his mind he began to draw the picture, and to place the two women in the center of it, without knowing the circumstances. There was some thing fascinating in the study he was of sinister possibilities for the hand of a virile painter. He wondered how near his imagination was to placing Monkey's Fun With Messenger Boy Was Altogether One-Sided for a Period, at Least.

A clerk on the fifth floor of the hall of records at New York saw a dark object flit by a window and opened the window to investigate. As he poked his head out he saw a fairly largesized monkey chattering and scolding from the next window sill. Down beow a crowd had gathered attracted by the unusual sight, and among the most interested was a hatless messenger boy. His interest was explained by the fact that he monkey held his hat in its paws and seemed about to tear it up, number plate, and all.

"Run along, sonny, and deliver your message," said a stout man, who was among the watchers. "I'll stay till the monkey is caught, and keep your cap for you."

"Dat's all right," said the messonger, "but de message is in me cap." The monkey ran from window to window, trying to evade the volunteers who rapidly organized a pursuit and finally captured it. #### BROKEN RAILS BLAMED ON SPANISH RAILROAD LINE

CHIEF CAUSE OF RAILROAD WRECKS IN LAST TEN YEARS.

H. W. Belnap, Inspector of Safety Appliances, Recommends an Investigation With Idea of Finding Means of Remedying Conditions.

Broken rails have been responsible for the killing of 175 persons, the injuring of 6,004, and damage to the extent of $3,237,793 during the last ten years, according to a report made to the interstate commerce commission by H. W. Belnap, its chief inspector of mends a complete investigation of rail. track and wheel load conditions for the purpose of determining the effect on of the recent types of locomo tives and cars, with their greatly increased wheel loads, and ascertaining remedy. The report was made in connection with an investigation of a derailment of a passenger train on the New Haven road on October 25 last, near Westerly, R. L. which resulted in the injury of 74 passengers

The report says that the derailment was caused by a defective rail. Chief Inspector Beinap points out that there are thousands of rails in use made at the same time and under identical conditions as those whose use had brought out the defect.

"It is manifestly evident," says Mr Belnap in his report to the commission, "that in this type of rail failures there is presented a serious situation. Rail failures of other types have been the cause of many accidents. To those elements of danger existing in the past is now added this type of failure shown in the development of interior

Big Cut in Expenses.

"We have cut down our fuel con-sumption on regular train trips 20 per cent in the last two years," stated the division superintendent of one of the eastern roads, "through a system of service towards the end of the current penalties and rewards. The average amount of both fuel and oil we take for the standard has been worked out carefully. A maximum of ten per cent over this amount is allowed for each locomotive. If more than this maximum is used the fireman or engineer or both are fined unless good reasons, such as delays and accidents, can be given. For anything less than the average used on each trip the engineer and fireman get credit. If they save more than ten per cent of the standard amount, they receive 50 per cent of the cost of the fuel saved. In the course of several hundred trips made in a year these rewards sometimes amount to considerable for the men. They appreciate it, and work accordingly."-Sunday Magazine.

FINLAND.

The Russian government has deter mined to use all its power to prevent Finland from competing in the Olympir games at Berlin as a nation. Gen eral Steyn, the governor general soon issue a decree dissolving the Finuish Olympic committee. This action is partly due to the general Russian policy of suppressing national aspira-tions, partly to a desire to have Russla make a better showing at Berlin than she did at Stockholm in 1912. All who attended the games at Stockholm will remember the contrast between the splendid delegation from Finland, and the far inferior representatives of the Russian nation. The Finns apbeared under their own the as a seu urate body, with a great assemblage of athletics, gymnasts and swimmers while the Flunish women who took part in the two last branches of the sports were, like the women from the other Scandinavian countries, one of the most attractive features of the occasion. Among the 18 prixe-winning nations Finland stood fourth with 52 points, only Sweden, the United States and Great Britain beating her-while Russia ranked only fifteenth, with six points to her credit. Throughout the meeting there was constant friction between the Finns and Russians. The Russians resented the appearance of the flag of Finland among the others as though she were an independent nation. The trouble culminated in a scene in the royal box at the stadium during an evening concert of singing societies, when the Finnish choirs sang one of their national hymns which contained reference to Russia as the "oppressor," and a Russian grand duke with his officers felt called to leave the box with ostenta-Whether the Russian governtion. ment will be able to prevent the Finns from running their own show at Berlin remains to be seen. Just at that time the farm ers needed large quantities of feed for their stock. They did not hesitate, but scores of them went to the cities and hauled the goods from the mills. The dealers themselves also took a hand. The strikers gathered around the mills, and stared to see the fun when portly merchants were to shoul der large sacks of flour and feed. But the merchants made the sacks swing in such a lively fashion that many an "expert" striker forgot to smile, and it took them only two days to change their minds and return to work on the old terms.

HENRY HOWLAND AN EVERYDAY MIRACLE

He scoffed at the Christian's hope and he sincered at the poet's song: He passed the beau-tiful by and noticed only the wrong: All things under

He turned from the murmuring brook, wearing a hopeless frown, And hid in a dismal nook in the heart of the dismai town.

On a day when the clouds were dark and the world was cold and wet passed where he paused a while, and he turned and their glances met: smiled ere she hurried on, humming a glud, sweet air, d he saw that the clouds were gone, that beauty was everywhere.

He that had scoffed at those who hoped for a home above

Learned, being taught by her, that God was a God of love: Mountain and plain and sea, all had be-come sublime. Ere the moment that he and she met for the second time.

"I thought." said the Old Subscriber, that you had a grudge agin Fergu son.

"No," replied the editor, "I haven't any grudge against him. I am op posed to him on matters of public policy, that's all. I consider myself too broad-minded to bear grudges. Still, I shouldn't consider it my duty, after vhat he has said about me, to of my way for the purpose of doing him a favor of any kind."

BLINDNESS IS BOY'S FATE

Appailing Effect of Careless Action Will Be the Permanent Loss of Child's Eyesight.

Gashed across the face by a pair of scissors which a playmate thought-lessly wielded in a reckless manner, three-year-old Thomas Inglesbry will lose the sight of both eyes. The injured boy is in a critical condition in the Polyclinic hospital, and physicians say that, even though an operation to remove the terribly lacerated optic be necessary, he will be blinded for

With several companions who were spending the evening in his home young Inglesbry was cutting strips from a newspaper to solve a picture One of his playmates, uncon scious of inglesbry's presence, threw out the hand in which he was holding the scissors. The sharp point struck the Inglesbry boy's right eye and swept across the bridge of his nose, penetra ing the other eye. Both eveballs were almost gouged from their sockets The wounded child's screams of agon attracted his parents, and they hu ried him to the hospital.-Philadelphia

ITCHED AND BURNED

Silverwood, Mich.-"My baby was about six months old when he first be gan to break out with little pimples on his head and face. Then they would run water and keep getting worse un til his head was a regular sore erup-tion and water would run and stream from it and his face also. His whole body was affected. They were little white pimples which itched and burned something terrible. His clothing seemed to irritate him and it was almost impossible for him to sleep a night. They also disfigured him as they were on his face.

"We tried medicine but without success. The trouble must have lasted three or four weeks when I thought I would try the Cuticura Scap and Oint ment. I would bathe him with warm water, as warm as he could stand and Cuticura Soap, then apply the Cuti-cura Ointment. The very first time that I did this it seemed to relieve him as he slept well and inside of two weeks he was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. L. White, Jan. 29, 1914.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Sample of each free with 32-p. Skin Book, Address postard "Cuticura, Dept. L, Boston."

The Mammoth Microbe "The microbe craze is a good thing," said Dr. Egbert R. Hewittson, the wellknown histologist, at a dinner at Atlantic City. "Yes, the microbe crare is a good thing. It has cleaned up the world. It has put a lot of diseases on the run. But, at the same time, it has its humorous side.

"I frequently urge my little son to have nothing to do with dogs or cats, because they are full of microbes. This morning, however, I came upon him on the beach playing with a stray mongrel. But just as I came up quitted the mongrel hurriedly. "Papa," he said, "it's true abou dogs baving microbes. microbe just jumped out of that dog's coat and lighted on my hand.'

The Hen. Mrs. Charlotte Perkins Gilman, the brilliant suffragist, said, at a luncheon at the Colony club in New York, in answer to an "anti:"

"So you accuse us, sir, of overconfi dence in the success of the suffragist movement. Well, sir, I'd ask you to remember this: "The hen is no great hand to swagger and strut, but at least she's never been known to cackle before she's laid the egg."

Women Receive Medals.
The Societe des Artistes Français awarded medala to 12 women at its salon recently, none of Americans. The fact that there were women among 60 honored with medals speaks very well for the work of the women artists of France.
